Thank you for your understanding.Q: perl one-liner for last line I have a string which I want to save it on a file, so I need to add . I am currently using sed and it works. How can I do this? My string is as follow : Hi how are you today? I want to save it on a file like below : Hi how are you today. I tried below one-liner but I am getting unexpected output for me. echo "${var}" | sed -e :1 -e '$d' -e '1 d' I think below may be correct one-liner, but I am not sure if I am correct : echo "${var}" > output_file A: You might use: cat $var | sed -e '$d' -e '1' > output_file Otherwise, you would need to use a loop: while read -r str do echo "$str" done output_file Note that if your shell is bash, you can use readarray: readarray -t lines Q: Subclassing ViewController that uses TableView methods? Is it a good idea to subclass a ViewController that uses TableView methods so that you can change the cells within the table? Do I run the risk of somehow disrupting the tableview? A: The exact answer to your question is yes. It's a good idea to have it as a single-module-library so that if you want to change your cell within the table, you can do it without changing the caller's code at all. I do something similar for it in an open source project that I maintain. I essentially wrote another library that extends the basic UITableViewController class from Xcode to make it easier to work with a collection view. And of
