We describe two cases of sequential acanthosis nigricans. Histologically the lesions were characterized by striking hyperkeratosis and parakeratosis followed by dyskeratosis and acantholytic dyskeratosis. The first case was a 76-year-old woman with rapidly progressive acanthosis nigricans. The second case, a 78-year-old man with diabetes mellitus, chronic renal insufficiency, gout, and hyperlipidemia, developed a pigmented and nonhyperkeratotic macule 2 months after first observation of acanthosis nigricans. // Copyright 2011 The Go Authors.
