What's New in the Happytime RTSP Server?

Handy, portable command line application Does anyone know if it's possible to have a sort of bash script that will wait for the video to start before it starts to play? That way I can skip loading the files. I tried to add the following into my script until vlc %1; do sleep 1; done but it doesn't seem to work. I only want the video to start when I click "play". And if I play something it doesn't matter. The script just plays. But I want it to wait for the video to start before it plays. A: The video starts once you hit play, and that's the case for any media program. I don't think there's a reliable way to wait until a media program starts, because once a media program starts, it won't stop unless you explicitly tell it to stop. But you could wait until the video is done loading and then run the video. To do that you can simply run vlc %1 in the background and then run the script. My first order was really bad, as I found out when I tried to return it. I received an order for $200 dollars more than what my mom paid, no reason at all. So that means I lost $200. Unfortunately I bought the cheapest brand of pantyhose, because I thought I can buy a better brand later, but the cheapest quality doesn't look as good as a better brand. I wasn't able to return it, so I did the only thing I could, which was to keep using it. I might buy it later on, as it's too embarrassing to wear a bad quality pantyhose. And it's hard to maintain a good hygiene. For the next order I choose the Lulu Gokus, the thin pantyhose. I usually don't buy the thicker ones, as they tend to stretch too much and can cause bleeding in the end. The thin ones tend to roll up at the top, which gives me a bit of a tights-look. I'm thinking about buying more of them though, because I feel they are really comfortable and make my legs look really good. I also tried the pantyhose that are made out of cotton and I love them! They're smooth and feel really soft, and the cotton is soft too, which is why I chose to buy them. They feel so good on my legs and give a smooth feeling to the skin. But I'm still struggling with how to wash them. The Lulu Gokus are not a cotton pantyhose, so they don't dry up easily after washing, which can be really annoying. I need to apply some moisturiser or something to them so they don't dry out too much. But it's not easy to find a moisturiser that is gentle enough to be used
