Retroperitoneal solitary fibrous tumor

(SFT) is a rare mesenchymal tumor in retroperitoneum. We report a case of SFT that occurred in a woman. The tumor was a well-defined mass, and was found incidentally during hysterectomy. Surgical resection was performed. Microscopically, the tumor was composed of a proliferation of spindle cells and ossification nodules within collagenous stroma.

Immunohistochemically, the tumor cells were positive for CD34, Bcl-2 and vimentin, and negative for alpha smooth muscle actin and CD21. Based on these histological and immunohistochemical features, we conclude that this lesion was a neoplasm of smooth muscle cell with a distinctive pattern of bone formation. Surgical resection is the treatment of choice for retroperitoneal SFT. Document Title
