Shows and sponsors Cross of the Order of Merit of the Free State of Saxony The Cross of the Order of Merit of the Free State of Saxony is the highest civil decoration of the Free State of Saxony. Instituted by the Saxon Chamber of Honour in 1961, it is also known as "Verdienstkreuz im Kurs", because it is awarded for "distinction of merit in special fields of endeavour". Since 1998, people who have received this decoration have worn the medal suspended from a blue ribbon. Titel The badge or medal itself is a cross in yellow gold with a black enameled centre. The obverse side of the badge depicts the state arms, with the words "Kreuz des Freiheitsorden (Order of Merit of the Free State of Saxony)". The reverse side bears the inscription "Das Verdienstkreuz des Kurs des Freiheitsorden" (the badge of merit of the "Kurs des Freiheitsorden"). Design and symbolism The Obverse The obverse side depicts the state arms, with the words "Kreuz des Freiheitsorden (Order of Merit of the Free State of Saxony)". The arms show the four left-facing golden lions holding a silver cross, on a field of black enameled cloth. The left-hand lion's paw is extended over the cross, while its right paw holds the shield of the state arms in the background. The Reverse The reverse side bears the inscription "Das Verdienstkreuz des Kurs des Freiheitsorden" (the badge of merit of the "Kurs des Freiheitsorden"). The inscription is separated from the medal by a horizontal, curved field of five black enameled stripes. In the centre, the words "Kurs des Freiheitsorden" are inscribed in the red enameled cross.
