Directed By: Bharat B. Released Year: 2012 Genres: Horror, Action, Drama, Drama, DQ: Comparing Datatable to List in linq Hi I am trying to compare a datatable to a list of names. Below is the code that I used. It works fine but when I try to run this I get the error: The operator & is not supported between a DataTable and a non-query-expression of type System.Collections.Generic.IEnumerable because it is not recognized as an integral operator. Here is the code: salesPersonList = s.SalesPerson.ToList() Dim cnt As Integer = salesPersonList.Count Dim check As Boolean = True For i As Integer = 0 To cnt - 1 Dim y As String = salesPersonList(i).Name If salesPersonList(i).Name.ToLower & (salesPersonList & i).Name.ToLower = y Then check = False End If Next I know that datatable has only ID as PK and List has Name as PK so I used the method Name to make them equal. A: You are referencing the column by name, not value. If you want to simply try if the Name and Name of the column match, you don't need to convert them into strings: If salesPersonList(i).Name & i.Name = y Then Q: Trying to convert java object to json using jackson I am using jackson to serialize and deserialize some data. I have a function which converts object to string and then string to object. The function looks like this - public static String toJson(Object obj) { StringBuilder builder = new StringBuilder(); JsonGenerator jsonGenerator = factory.createJsonGenerator(builder); jsonGenerator.writeStartObject(); jsonGenerator.writeStringField("name", obj.getClass().getSimpleName()); jsonGenerator.writeStringField("value", obj.toString());
