When we were thinking about what we want to do for the first post Daichi Shindou's school graduation, everyone was together. At that time, we started to think of a title for the first game of this series. Like when Daichi was speaking in front of the class, we might have a few reasons behind it, but we decided that the reason that needed to be better than everyone else was, "Daichi won't fall behind!". This is the reason we decided that the title should be "Chuusotsu!". "Chuusotsu!" means to push back, slow down or even block or push back time. As long as you can keep on pushing back time in your heart, you can be free from the worries and pressure you're feeling now. That's why, even though you have a problem right now, you have nothing to worry about. This is the meaning behind the subtitle "1st Graduation: Time After Time". This is the feeling that we wrote into the story to describe how "the first time is time after time". We decided that this should have a story that has great drama and great fights. But also, a lot of traps would cause chaos. At the same time, our main character, Daichi, who was worrying about his past mistakes, would stop and think about all of it and think deeply. The more he thought deeply about all of it, the more he was able to understand what he was thinking of. Because of that, he started to realize and understand all of his weaknesses from a new perspective. So, if he can open his heart and mind and struggle with the feelings he's been hiding, There's no way he can't be a passionate person. That's the main theme behind this game. As you can see, the story of "Chuusotsu!" starts from the perspective of a fight. However, with the resistance of Daichi, he was able to realize all of his weaknesses and come to an understanding of who he was. This is to think about yourself, who you are and who your limits are. The value of this game is that we were able to convey such a deep message in an action game. The main protagonist of the story, Daichi, d41b202975
