What's new in Fantasy Grounds - Starfinder RPG - Starfinder Society Scenario 2-23: The Edge Of Cadascon:

Jokers From Pathfinder to Starfinder Death on the Edge
Cadassians are shallow. Their government is decaying and little effort goes into maintaining the centuries-old civilization. Their architecture is crumbling, their sigils, in danger of being lost to dust. But from the edges of the country, a cadastral charm quietly slips into the world. Slices of Illusion Prestige: 0 1 0 Ambulatory (0, 0, 0, 0) Description A local illusionist and her minder materialize from nothing at the edges of Cadascon. The pair is planning a long stay, but watch out for patrols.
Description An illusionist (SU) and her minder materialize out of thin air at the edges of Cadascon. Friends are always welcome at a local bar, but they must be well-groomed and know how to communicate with locals. Have some fun with this illustrated guide on how to build a Simple Wizard in Pathfinder. The following is a list of locations, encounters, and resources, as well as additional notes in italics. Location Why are the Companions of Adventurers residing in this city? The following are some questions to ask yourself when thinking about your character's background: • Are they continent-wide royalty? If not, what do they rule? What does this discovery mean for you and your character? • Is your character a local of the city? In what capacity? What do you learn about your character's goals when operating in this area? What do you learn about your character's goals when operating in this area? • What makes this place special to your character, in any way? • What does this mean for your character's future? Is your character drawn to the place as a result of something in their past? Ragnarok Further down the river, across a rainbow bridge, lies the city of Whiterun Skyrim (see map). This city is a top destination for herring and commerce. If you want to buy weapons or a fast horse, you'd better make it there. Ragnarok (1 day 43, 13 hours, 50 minutes); a satellite city of Whiterun; falls under jurisdiction of the Silver Hand; has a bustling herring
