An ancient evil has emerged in the human realm. This evil has found a new life in the bodies of mortals. It is called the "Devils". Haven't seen? Never had a devil? Think of the original devil that was before Gudger as a human. They are newborn though, only up to the age of five. Once, there was a great evil that took the power of the entire world. The latter half is now completely unknown to humans. One day, during the time of that evil, a powerful "Grand Magician" appeared. Gudger the Dragon is descended from that evil. He planned to become the world's greatest magician and took on the name, "Gudger." Gudger created a new generation of evil, "Devils," and made them incarnate in various places as mortals. He tried to rule the world from a level above the world. Alden, who was born as a human, made a big enemy of him, and it turns out that they were the mortal who became a devil after running out of chances. However, he was destroyed by Gudger. He managed to imprison Gudger in the Seal of the Gods and broke the Seal. That is what his demon parts were forced to do as an immortal being. After his death, he was reborn as a mortal as "Dark Knight Vorg." His friends became the Gods of the East, heroes of the Seal of the Gods. Kyurem, a dragon formed by Alden and the gods into a shining full moon, created the monsters like Zorua and Maraquis. They became the Stone Guardians of the Magna Myth, main antagonists of this game. "Dark Knight Vorg" is the protagonist of this game. He became a dark knight from the East. It is said that he was born when the "Demon Soul" of Alden, Alden's "Devil" came to life and he can even use magic that no one else can use. He has his own story and he will become the person who breaks the Seal of the Gods to get to the South. Maraquis, Zorua, and other monsters are the Stone Guardians of the Magna Myth, the main adversaries. They are the people who originally fought against the Seal of the Gods. They were originally humans from the East, defeated by Ald

ATLANTA -- I'VE SEEN THIS before. This story will keep many of you up late on a school night, but it's one that everyone in the playoff race needs to read as we get closer and closer to the end of the season. At some point this season, the Washington Redskins should have better luck than they have had in recent years by the name they go under. The numbers keep telling this story for them. Despite finishing 7-7 last year and being knocked out of the playoffs in wild-card week when they lost to the Chicago Bears, they have had a surprisingly good season the last two years. The Redskins are allowed to be 7-7, and we've all known they couldn't win the NFC East this year. They only have two defeats of more than seven points this season. In our highly subjective system, they had the four best records in the NFC East, but they've gone through different coaches and one of those guys lost his job. More importantly, it has been a total mess up there on the schedule. Chicago has a double-digit win edge over the Redskins. Dallas is only one-and-a-half games ahead of Washington. So who really has them farther back in the playoffs now? Now, how about the Oakland Raiders? They're 7-5, but they are still alive, and they are in that now-familiar role of having a team that sits a game ahead of the Redskins in the standings, but who is potentially unlikely to make the postseason because of their strength of record. With three weeks to go, where does that put the Redskins in the playoff race? Let's play what-if. It's pretty much been Washington's experience over the years, and it's almost always there with a whole lot of offseason coaches and general managers in charge for at least a few years. They often are brought back in midseason, and they typically make the playoffs. What if the Redskins finish this season at 10-6, and all of their losses -- let alone their one notable win over the St. Louis Rams -- come against division opponents? For instance, if the Atlanta Falcons win out, they have to play the Los Angeles Rams in the final month. This is probably a game they should win, and it's a game that helps their playoff chances. The one problem is that the Redskins just get a win in the regular-season finale in Los Angeles before the
