NEW SIMPLE SOLUTION (5/3/2013). 0.5. .IRAQI GOVERNMENT forces have moved to secure a defiant capital Baghdad and one of the last major strongholds of Islamic State militants, a monitoring group says. On Tuesday, Iraqi security forces backed by a helicopter drove IS fighters out of Tikrit in an operation that saw members of the group fleeing into the city of Samarra, which is under insurgent control, the USled coalition said. The fighting in the strategically located city - which lies 115km north of Baghdad - came amid US President Barack Obama's vow to "degrade" and "destroy" the group. "The Iraqi forces are now advancing on Tikrit and the jihadists are fleeing toward Samarra, fearing a possible ambush and suicide attack," Major General Qassim Atta, spokesman of Baghdad Operations Command, told AFP. "The terrorists in Tikrit were the ones who threatened the capital," he said, adding that forces had killed a number of suspected IS fighters. Colonel Hassan al-Jubouri of the Iraqi security forces in Samarra said Islamic State jihadists had begun leaving the area. "The resistance forces are still engaged in clashes with the terrorists in the central and northern parts of the town," he told AFP. "We carried out a counter-attack to thwart the terrorists in Samarra, despite the fact that the terrorists are trying to flee and are moving towards western Mosul," he said. "The terrorists are scattering their fighters, leaving each other behind, trying to flee." U.S. Central Command said IS fighters had been forced out of Tikrit in a 10-hour operation spearheaded by US war
