is releasedFriday, November 28, 2009 Belated Happy Thanksgiving to all my wonderful readers from North America. Thank you for your visits to my blog and your comments. I cannot tell you how much I have enjoyed getting to know you.
Since it is a cold, damp, wet day in the UK today, I was going to post a busy day of stitching. I had planned to show you a tiny piece of Japanese Kozi fabric that I bought the other day at the Hanga Matsuri show in Tokyo. I love this fabric and I was delighted with the way it stitched up. It stitched beautifully and I can see lots of ways that it could be used to make a pretty quilt or to create a key ring. In the end I decided not to show you the fabric as I didn't want to overwhelm you with too many photos. I realised that I will be posting my usual picture of my stitching on a Monday so I thought it might be nice to post an inspiring photo of a needlework design on the Friday. This photo was taken in October when I visited the High Museum in Atlanta in the U.S. of A. I was struck by a piece of contemporary embroidery by the artist Tomie Ohtake. I have long admired her work but it was the detail on this photo that impressed me. As I looked closely at the details I was really taken by the way that the light was coming through the window. I felt the need to include my own fabric this week. As you probably know, I am quite keen on buttons, brooches, beads and pins of all sizes. If you are looking for great bargains
