How to Enable or Disable Call barring: IP.Kills on the road, robberies, sexual assault and domestic violence are among the crimes that are rarely reported because either no one notices them, or the police or the victim are too embarrassed to report them. However, one Saskatoon man is hoping a new app he's created will encourage more people to come forward. Gemma Thiroux is the founder of the app, called the "Vigil Report." "It takes information from your phone so that you're reporting to the police, reporting to your witnesses," said Thiroux. She said she is hoping it will help victims of a crime who might think they're not in danger if they don't give a statement to the police. "If I can get a couple thousand people to use the app, it will hopefully change the culture of victim-blaming in Canada, which is really prevalent." The "Vigil Report" app gives people a small badge to place on their clothing that can be seen by any witness to a crime. Thiroux said the badge can also send a text message to the police that can help witnesses who want to give information. She wants to get the application on the Apple App Store and Google Play Store, but a lot of work needs to be done to get it there. "We're doing all the actual coding and programming by volunteers," she said. Thiroux said the app was put together in a couple of weeks, and is currently available only in English. It currently costs $9.99 per year to use it. With files from CTV News Saskatoon's Regan PlantQ: code coverage for ruby and objective-c project in xcode - local or build?
