From the hand-drawn intro animation, to the exceptionally charming art direction and voice acting, it's easy to see that this is the result of passionate labour. Well worth your time.8/10 Android Toad The game is a little clunky, but when you come to a section you've been in before, which is part of the fun. Great design. 7/10 Android Trin Nice game! I love the text adventure gameplay.I love old text adventure games. The art style is neat too. Atmospheric story, except for some cheesy romance. Love the little descriptions of locations.Yes, there are a number of dated words (elves and elves!) and the style does take you out of The Hobbit at times. But if you're into this kind of thing I'd rather have the dated voices than have the Hobbit movie more in my head.Hidden Hills Daycare Located in Hidden Hills, North Hills, California. & Bluray + Free EP of the Electrolala One Song Fits All Compilation These past few months, the Grateful Dead have become associated with the psychedelic, dream pop music community for the first time as they're releasing the celebrated psychedelic song "Eyes of the World" for the longest time on record in May and a new Death By Stereo album 'The Light of Summer' on June 27. Meanwhile, apart from the three Grateful Dead members, the band's music is also linked with acts like Spiral Stairs, MGMT, Hurley, Deafheaven, Lord Huron and more. At the same time, the August issue of Exclaim! Magazine recently interviewed Jesse Liautaud (born Jesse Koo on Facebook) who is the guitarist/vocalist/co-producer of the Connecticut band Beat Club Clique, also known as BC Clique. He was somehow suggested as part of the Light of Summer album despite not playing on the album. The editor of the magazine told Jesse Liautaud to contact Dead Can Dance lead singer Lisa Gerrard, who was the one who recommended him. Related "They sent me a notification, like 'The Light of Summer is going to be the next Dead Can Dance album,'" Jesse Liautaud remembered. He then explained how his call with Lisa Gerrard went. "I was like, 'Are you serious?' She was like, 'Oh, man! That's so amazing!' I sent her a song called "Fire Song" and when I spoke to her the same day, I didn't know what to expect, but when she sang it live one night at Chicago's Thalia Hall, I was like, 'This is really --this is insane'. It was just so powerful. She must've put a lot of passion into it. I've listened to it hundreds of times. This is Lisa Gerrard, who sings and plays guitars and organs. She has a very tonal voice. It's very soft, a singer/songwriter kind of thing. "I got her number and I was like, 'Okay, when I'm in Boston, if we ever meet for coffee, I'll buy you a coffee and we'll talk a little bit'. That never happened, so I don't know what would've happened, but I was pretty excited to send it to her." A few days after hanging up with Lisa Gerrard, Jesse Liautaud's call with Dead Can Dance's lead singer Lisa Gerrard
