The Nervana-powered NNP-L1000 is the first commercial application-specific, AI-ready Nervana-based Server Platform. In an expected evolution of the AI and deep learning revolution, Wistron’s Nervana-powered NNP-L1000 is the first commercial server platform equipped with Intel® Nervana™ Xe neural networking (NNN) technology for deep learning and AI operations. Powered by Nervana Xe, the Nervana-based NNP-L1000 can deliver up to 40X accelerated machine learning and deep learning operations. “At Intel we are excited to join Wistron on this journey,” said Zhijia Wang, general manager, Nervana Neural Network Processor, Intel. “Our relationship with the AI industry is at the very beginning of the journey, and we are at a stage where the rapid pace of development puts us in a good position to be a leader for this next technology trend. With the introduction of the Nervana™ powered NNP-L1000, Intel becomes the first company to make available a true AI computing platform.” Made in collaboration with Wistron, the Nervana-based NNP-L1000 can achieve an unprecedented level of performance thanks to the latest Nervana Xe, which is a deep learning accelerator that extends the benefits of Nervana Neural Network Processor technology to all applications. “We are proud to join Intel in their innovation journey towards making Nervana-based platforms available to the market. Wistron is a leader in the semiconductor industry with a strong track record in AI computing. This collaboration will enable Wistron to develop innovative new AI solutions leveraging Intel’s highly efficient Nervana
