I need to generate a vector of the n elements of a probability distribution. In each element of the vector, there is a probability of a certain value. For instance, if the elements are 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and there is a probability of 1, 1/4, 1/9, 1/7, 1/9, 1/10, 1/20, 1/30 each, then the vector should be 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. That's what I have right now: #include #include #include #include #include using namespace std; void generator(unsigned int, unsigned int, vector&); int main() { vector numbers; unsigned int n = 12; generator(1, 9, numbers); assert(n == numbers.size()); assert(numbers.data() == reinterpret_cast::_CrtMemAlloc(n * sizeof(int))); for(int i = 0; i & numbers) { static random_device rd; random_device::result_type st; uniform_int_distribution us(start_val, end_val); do { st = rd(); while(us(st) == 0) { st = rd(); } numbers.push_back
