Coatings of this general type are used for the production of parts with a complex surface geometry, for example for parts for automobile construction. Until now, customary coating systems, which are used as coating systems for production of parts, are the high-frequency electro-, hot melt- and conventional coating systems. The high-frequency electro- and hot melt systems offer problems, for example due to the required high coating rate and the resulting high adhesive force between the coating film and the substrate. In the conventional coating systems, coating characteristics such as the quality and flatness of the coating, and also, particularly, corrosion resistance and environmental stress cracking resistance play an important part in the choice of coating system. A major disadvantage of the conventional coating systems is, however, that the highly aggressive media used in the coating method in combination with the use of water-based substrates causes corrosion of the coating and of the substrate. The resulting corrosion has an adverse influence on the durability of the coated parts. When organic solvents were previously used as solvents for high-quality coatings, environmental and safety problems were caused by the environmental and health risks of such organic solvents.

As you can see, I did take very little shrooms last night and probably wasn't an ideal candidate for "shroom mode", but I had a strong experience like I would in a more appropriate situation. Not very much there, but some good stuff to whet your appetite. I went with a friend, who usually takes lots of shrooms, to a party in Scottsdale, AZ. After about 4-5 hours of the little dessert (15-20g) I was feeling like I could go out and play basketball. He had none of these suggestions, but I had the barest of numbs, and was feeling great. I went outside and played pickup basketball with a few teenagers, played some beerball, felt great, and came home...and then I was hitting balls on my back field, soaking it in. I have always wanted to have an outdoor basketball court, and this was a great opportunity. Another thing I did not do was change clothes, so the temperatures out there got pretty cold. By the time I had returned to my house about an hour or so later, I was freezing. I have been taking about 30-50g every 2-3 days for a year and a half, and I really feel that it has improved my quality of life. I have stopped "shooting" them the
