can be) web-framework based on wxPython, which does not drop garbage collection. The docs are not horrible and you can even automate deployment, if you wish. The wiki is great and there's lots of information on Zope in the documentation area. Zope3 is very easy to install: Zope3 is included in wxPython, so you just have to execute "python setup.py" in the zope3 directory to have Zope3 running as your web-server; as a result you can also use Zope3 as your database backend. There are four different ways to access the Zope3 web-server: a CGI script (named something
