TabWalk for Firefox Crack Mac is a natively developed addon for Firefox that lets you quickly navigate between the tabs that were recently active, which can lower the number of miss clicks and improve your workflow.Q: Find which row contains certain number using index I have a list of long integers. I need to find out which of these numbers is equal to a certain number. I will use the function index() to find the row number of the element that is equal to a certain number. Suppose I have a list of n integers in which I'd like to find all the numbers that are equal to some k. Currently, I'm using this brute-force approach. for i in xrange(0,n): if a[i]==k: print i Is there a more efficient way to do this? A: Alternatively, you could use bisect >>> a = [2,3,4,7,9,8] >>> a.sort() >>> mid = int(len(a) / 2) >>> mid, mid - 1 = bisect.bisect(a, 6) >>> a [2, 3, 4, 7, 9] This will keep the order of the list. If you're worried about using a too large chunk of the array being swapped, you can use list.__getitem__() to just get the desired chunk directly. >>> a = [2,3,4,7,9,8] >>> mid, mid - 1 = a[bisect.bisect(a, 6)] >>> a [2, 3, 4, 7, 9] Q: How can I make my popleware text transparent? I'm trying to make my colorTransparent() text transparent, but when I try, all the text dissapears. Why is this happening and how can I make it transparent? This is the code I am using: package Main; import javax.swing.JFrame; import javax.swing.JPanel; import java.awt.; import java.awt.event.; import javax.swing.*; public class windowMain extends JFrame { private final JPanel contentP

TabWalk is an add-on that allows you to navigate between recently accessed tabs using keyboard shortcuts. For example: ALT-SHIFT- Arrows will put the last accessed tab on focus. However, the last tab is ignored, for example, if you have 8 tabs, it will only switch between the first and the last tabs. To better understand how it works, you can check the example given below. [caption id="attachment_1308" align="aligncenter" width="1387"] [/caption] When you jump to the last used tab, you will notice that the TabWalk add-on will ignore any new tabs that were opened before the extension was installed. The screenshot below shows how to navigate between active tabs using the TabWalk addon for Firefox. [/caption] Using the TabWalk addon, you will notice that you can also switch between active tabs that are currently opened in a browser session, with the following key combinations: ALT-Shift-Left Arrow or Right Arrow. Keep in mind that tabs that were not recently active are automatically ignored. [/caption] You can customize the key combination and set the number of active tabs to switch between with this tab management addon. TabWalk For Firefox

Search the web, surf the web, get started with Firefox and other Mozilla web products with TabWalk for Firefox, an add-on for Firefox that will always show the last eight recently used pages. Installation Click on the Mozilla Add-ons icon on your Firefox browser and select the Get Add-ons button. Select the Install button in the dialog box, and wait for the installation process to finish. Restart your Firefox browser when the installation finishes. Note: If you have Firefox Beta Builds, a specific version of TabWalk will be required. You will need to restart the browser to use the correct version of TabWalk. Once installed, the next time you access a webpage, TabWalk will display the last eight pages you have visited, in the order in which you visited them. TabWalk does not interfere with the normal use of Firefox. The only time it may be problematic is when you are using Firefox as a browser, and have many tabs open, when it may lead to a slowdown. Just because TabWalk opens up a window, it does not mean that the Tabs feature has been deactivated. With TabWalk, you can continue to use the Tabs feature normally. No Free version is available. Besides, you should take care of a fully-featured version if TabWalk does not work properly, even if it does not seem to conflict with the regular use of Firefox. No online activation is possible. Download TabWalk An alternative to Firefox's Open tabs in order of access by clicking the up or down buttons This alternative can be considered another alternative for Firefox. TabClicker will open up the most recently used tabs in order of access. The browser window will scroll through the recently used pages automatically, until it reaches the page you want to browse to. TabClicker Description: This extension will automatically open up the last visited web page(s) in order of most accessed to least accessed (newest to oldest). This is done by examining the address bar history of Firefox using a special bookmarklet. Once activated, you can always manually change the order of browsing with the Arrow button (Left Arrow). This is not the same as actually going back to a previous page, but it is a quick solution. However, the only tab currently displayed is the last one opened. Please note that some webpages may not react properly to this extension as a result of security protocols. Therefore,
