Q: How to deploy alfresco server to Ubuntu 12.04 server? I am trying to deploy Alfresco 4.2 to an Ubuntu 12.04 server however when I do this I get: Errors while processing archive: /var/lib/dpkg/info/alfresco-

server-4.2.alfresco.components.postinst: scriptlet.postinst line 22: start-stop-daemon: command not found I can not find what I am missing. A: It seems that the scriptlet-postinst is looking for a script called start-stop-daemon. But on Linux this script is usually in /sbin/init You need to add that path to your PATH. For this you can check all available SysV-init scripts via: grep -rni start-stop-daemon /sbin If there is only one visible one you can add to your PATH environment variable: export PATH=/sbin:$PATH If there are more than one,

DISCLAIMER: • Please be aware this instruction manual and the publications are intended for an US operation, as the interface to the wall mounted clock may differ significantly. • Incorrect information could mean serious injury. • The clock and accessories provided in stock may not be appropriate for specific applications. • If you do not know how to change your time zone or adjust daylight saving time, please consult your local electric utility, a time and date source or an expert. Adjusting your time zone Adjusting daylight saving time Please note: If you have trouble locking the access-code for the SECURITY access interface, contact your local electric utility. If your are using a stationary wall clock, as shown in Figure 1, adjust the hour meter knob. The shaft of the hour meter knob should be somewhere near the 12 (twelve o'clock) mark when the supplied power cable is connected. If your clock is portable, the external case may be accessed by spinning the second and minute arm in the direction it is pointed, as shown in Figures 2 and 3. Figure 1 - Stationary Clock Figure 2 - Adjusting Time Zone Dial Arch Figure 3 - Adjusting Time Zone Dial Ring Arch Adjusting the time zone dial will only result in a change in the time and not the date. When the clock is to be connected to a power source for adjusting the time zone, turn the dial clockwise until the correct time is shown on the hour meter face. When the appropriate time zone is shown, turn the dial counter-clockwise to secure the setting. If you are not ready to use the clock, do not turn the dial before securing its setting. The time zone adjustment can be used to adjust the time to the day of the week, a specific time of year or a standard practice like Standard Time, Daylight Saving Time, or Atlantic Standard Time. Do not choose an inappropriate time zone and expect an anti-clockwise clockwise rotation to restore the time zone you selected. Do not use the time zone adjustment to set the clock to a time that has not been set in the past and will not exist in the future. For example, do not set the time zone dial to, "Pacific Standard Time", "Central Standard Time" or "Arabic Standard Time".
