Features of Adobe Photoshop Elements Many of Photoshop's features are missing from Elements, including: Gestures Paint and Paintbrush Layers Greyscale or CMYK mode Clone Stamp Drop shadows Adjustment layers Navigation mesh Smart Objects Save for Web Once an image is placed inside Elements, you can perform the following operations: Rotate Scale Crop Free transform Sharpen and/or blur Add a layer mask Duplicate and merge layers Blend or composite (combine) layers Vectorize shapes And that's it! When you are finished editing the image and are ready to save, you need to use the Save for Web feature (see the "Save" tab). If you are using Photoshop for design, Elements does not let you create custom fonts and styles. You can import Photoshop and Elements fonts and use them. The Elements tutorials below and the online Help are also available in the Help menu. Figure 1. Adobe Photoshop Elements –

Technical Field The present disclosure relates to a touch device, and more particularly to a touch device capable of detecting a touched point. Description of the Related Art Various electronic devices have become a focus of attention due to the development of science and technology. In the electronic devices, a user can operate a touch screen to input data through a touch panel. The touch screen is constituted of a touch panel and a display screen. The display screen displays an image, and the touch panel is disposed beneath the display screen to transmit a touch signal. In the touch panel, a plurality of touch electrodes extend from a first surface of the touch panel to a second surface of the touch panel. A finger touches a point on the second surface of the touch panel to generate a touch signal. The touch signal is transmitted to a touch controller in the touch panel, and then transmitted to a host through a signal line. In the signal line, the touch signal can be transmitted between two adjacent touch electrodes. As long as there is no interruption of the signal line, the touch controller can detect the touch signal transmitted via the signal line and generate a touch coordinate. Sunday, December 10, 2008 Tonight... At 6:30, we'll finally meet our grandson, Nicholas, in the kitchen...even though we know he's only at least an hour late. Hopefully he's been able to get home from the hospital safely. Today...I have my son to our favorite restaurant in town. I don't want to say "home," because even though we've been out of town since the beginning of November, our house still feels like home. We didn't stay in the city, however; we drove over the mountains to our favorite restaurant. They have an open fire in the fireplace and one of the most amazing views of the mountains. I am so thrilled I get to drive across the mountains and will be able to eat a meal with my son, tonight. Maybe I'll have time to blog about it too. I'm going to try to get my grandson's birth certificate and get him our Christmas card from Halloween. I will be gone tomorrow and Monday, but will be back to normal on Tuesday. I have a lunch for Wednesday and another for Thursday. I'll be off again on Friday. So, I'm going to take a couple of days off to enjoy the snow. I used to be able to walk around my garden in it. Now, I just step over it. But it's still
