Brown and Mildred Harris. The film is the second highest-grossing film of 1930. A contemporary review in the trade publication Motion Picture News of a United States premiere on December 23, 1930 stated: "The Campbell's Christmas is so slick and well-mounted that it may deceive the audience. The plot line is innocuous. The plot line is played as far as possible to the hilt by many scriptwriters but Joe E. Brown as the white slaver is good enough to make the picture go." Plot Drifting lumber rafts wash up on a Pacific island. The residents, including Cap'n Campbell, an unscrupulous lumber captain and Mattie, a young girl and her aunt, barter the lumber for other goods and a boat. Mattie is enamored of the young radioman. He is attracted to Mattie, but
