You may be asking... why was I able to make this? You see, I love retro pixel art, and I love pixel art games... and I have years of experience as a developer. This was my first pixel art game and I wanted to make something I'd be proud of. Also, I'm one of those people that gets excited about saving the family. I hope you enjoy this retro game, and thanks for playing! Screenshots Reviews Awesome retro game 5 By Mascaretf8 This is a great game! I really like the pixel art, and the gameplay is fun. As far as features, I'm surprised there aren't more unlockable levels. On the plus side, this game is easy to play and controls really well. It's such a great nostalgic game 5 By WillJayd2 Bought this game with my wife, "From my collection... see how it was then" Saved my life in college. But I'd never play it since I've been out of school for the past 10 years! Funny how we grow up, times change... If you loved games, and old school platformers with your pixel art, put this one in your collection! Great old school retro game 4 By S3gstom4 I love retro games with pixel art, and this one was a blast to play. The difficulty level can be somewhat challenging, but it's not obnoxious. It's just fun. The game is really addictive and great for playing on the bus or train. The controls are fairly easy to pick up, and I loved being able to use both of my thumbs on the controls for precision. Great retro game 5 By Opponnents A really fun game and everything i expected from a old-school retro game. Not bad

----- Ducky needs your help. Just like in the old games, you have to run and jump through an environment with obstacles, enemies and goodies to collect. Ducky has a couple of weapons at hand and can tilt, so you can throw stuff. There are four levels. Each level consists of many, many levels. And they all contain items, switches, doors and more. In each level there are four doors that need to be opened and four keys that need to be collected. When all the keys have been collected, Ducky can unlock the door. When the door is open, the sibling trapped in the room can be released. This is a Flash game. You need a Flash Player to play. See here for more info: It's just a bird..Oscar. In this game, You play Oscar the bird and you can find many sounds which you will have to build by clicking the screen. If you succeed, the bird will create a new sound. You have to get to the goal and play it at the end. Can you finish this game? If you like this game and you have some hours of free time, please give us a like and a share. Journey To A Wonderful Kingdom The following story is based on a popular legend of the Middle Ages, in which the brave and faithful knight Sir Gadsbort took upon himself the duty to rescue the beautiful princess from the clutches of the evil tyrant. The King and the evil one wanted to exchange for her the most precious jewel. But once their eyes meet, the great love grew between the two. The King was left so happy that he named the land which he and his queen inherited the Kingdom of Glorious. Now there is a great celebration for the knight, who has returned home after ten years of combat. But the King and his queen ask you to leave the castle for a week, so you can enjoy the freedom and play with other people. But now it is time to play the game! You should jump to the right, left and down in order to get to the exit. if you jump on the white space, you will gain bonus points, but that won't help you to get out. This game was made as a special case request from a fan of this legend. Thanks again to the fan who requested this! -

What's new:

(Goofy) Ducky, (Goofy) is a Disney character used in appearances of Walt Disney Pictures starting in 1983. He was also the main character of the short-lived television series who won a Children's Choice Award in 1990. He can be best described as a self-centered, doltish, boorish, brash, fun-loving, and often pretentious primate with more than a passing resemblance to Chip the Chipmunk. The original character After seeing Mickey Mouse's first sound film Steamboat Willie (1928) in 1938, Walt Disney saw some similarities between himself and Donald Duck and wanted something new to keep his name from being too closely associated with the duck, or any other character, after Steamboat Willie. At the same time, Walt had just acquired his first feature film, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (1937), and wanted another character to play the role of the title character's trusty steed. In early 1939, he named the new character "Goofy" after his lips (the shape of his mouth as compared to Donald's beak-shaped mouth). The mascot character he was creating, however, never appeared as part of Disney's motion picture output. Instead, he was a mascot to be used by other media such as films and other merchandise. After Disney produced Snow White, Goldilocks and the Three Bears (1944) and Fantasia (1940), he searched for a project for Goofy to carry out. When he got the 1940 film Fun and Fancy Free, which he had been putting out to film distributors with the hopes that someone would release it as a film, he approached Sidney Lanfield, a highly respected English entertainer with considerable experience, who was planning to produce a film in which Goofy had a primary role, named The Three Caballeros. Disney agreed to acquire the film and turned it into a film he intended to distribute to theaters while Lanfield worked on the Goofy project. Unfortunately, Goofy was not used in the film. It was decided that Goofy would be much more effective in the animated shorts that would be released with the films. The first short released was Dumbo (1941). In 1950, he had a considerably larger role in the first all-color feature film, The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad (1949), which was not a success at the box office, although it was nominated for

The CapNi gas analyzer monitors end-tidal carbon dioxide simultaneously with an on-screen graphic display of PtcCO2. To date, few studies have evaluated its use in children. We conducted a prospective study of its use in monitoring infants requiring endotracheal intubation or supraglottic airway placement with administration of propofol sedation or regimens where reduction of PtcCO2 to a level associated with reduced risk of hypoxemia and cardiovascular arrest is desirable. Fifty-four children were monitored after sedation or placement of a supraglottic airway device and divided into five groups (I-V). Thirty-one were undergoing an awake intubation before anesthesia. Group I-10 children (PtcCO2 30-35 mm Hg) were initially intubated in situ with no supplemental drug for ventilatory control. Group II-9 children (PtcCO2 40-45 mm Hg) were initially intubated in situ with fentanyl and
