There is this backup thingy I am using, that seems to be very slow, compared to other backup software I have used in the past. I have exported data to my computer, I want to either restore the data with the backup file and get the latest version of my data (preserve the newer versions, should I need them in the future), or just reinstall the system with the backup file. So, the question is, how do I go about backing up just the data, so that when the system is installed again I will get the latest versions? Or will I have to import the backup file
