Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system developed by Roblox Corporation that allows users to program games and play games created by other users. Created by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel in 2004 and released in 2006, the platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. For most of Roblox's history, it was relatively small, both as a platform and a company. Roblox began to grow rapidly in the second half of the 2010s, and this growth has been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic. Roblox is free to play, with in-game purchases available through a virtual currency called Robux. As of August 2020, Roblox had over 164 million monthly active users, including more than half of all American children under 16. Although Roblox has received generally positive reviews from critics, it has faced criticism for its moderation, microtransactions, and exploitative practices directed toward children. ~~~~~ Please watch: "The Ultimate Collection | Maren Morris | The Voice Finale" ~~~~~ Roblox: A History [pt. 2] | Crash Course - History #13 In part one, we met the early movers behind Roblox. Hope these 3 methods helped you.In electrophotography, an organo-sensitizing dye known as a charge generating material (hereinafter, “CG”) is generally applied to an image-supporting member (hereinafter, “photosensitive member”) by various means as a charge generation material. The photosensitive member is then exposed to a corona discharge in the presence of the CG, thereby forming a charge pattern on the photosensitive member. Thereafter, the photosensitive member is selectively exposed to light based on image information (i.e., the exposed areas function as image areas, the non-exposed areas function as non-image areas), thereby forming an electrostatic latent image. A toner is then applied to the image areas by various methods. The toner is transferred to paper or another material in the form of a toner image, which is subsequently fixed to the material. A low-molecular dye is often used as a charge generating material because the low-molecular dye is relatively easy to dissolve in a solvent. However, the low-molecular dye has the following two problems. First, since the low-molecular dye is easily decomposed by heat and/or light, the low-molecular dye is not long-lived. In particular, low-molecular dyes are not sufficiently long-lived when they are used in an electrophotographic process that is performed at a high temperature. Second, the low-molecular dye has a low chargeability. Therefore, a large amount of the low-molecular dye needs to be applied to the photosensitive member. However, the CG that is prepared by dissolving the low-molecular dye in a solvent has a low solubility in the solvent. Therefore, the low-molecular dye needs to be dissolved by using a high concentration of the solvent in order to increase the amount of the dissolved low-molecular dye. However, when a high concentration of the solvent is used to increase the amount of the dissolved low-molecular dye, the medium used to transfer the charge of the photosensitive member needs to be changed. For example, organic solvents have a

Example: db.Table( "ID" INTEGER PRIMARY KEY, "UserId" INTEGER NOT NULL, "IsLocked" INTEGER NOT NULL DEFAULT FALSE ) I need to find the list of IDs of users who have IsLocked = true, to show a modal dialog with an alert. But in this list, the same user can have many, many records with different IsLocked. Any suggestions? A: Suppose your DB is SqlServer then you can use the IN method like this: select * from yourTableName where isLocked = True AND Id in (select ID from yourTableName where IsLocked = True) You'll only get a single record because the query will return only those Ids that are also True for IsLocked. Q: Why do I get a 'cannot convert from string to char*' error? string client_hostname(const string& dom_ip) { if (dom_ip == "127.0.0.1" || dom_ip == "localhost") { return "127.0.0.1"; } const size_t lstrlen = strlen(dom_ip
