The problem is that this ExtJS version doesn't work with IE7 & IE6 (No Javascript errors, just black blank screen with correct URL in the console), while using a lighter version (version 2.0.0) works fine. Can I simply install the older versions of ExtJS for use with IE7 & IE6, or do I have to upgrade to a newer version of ExtJS? Thanks for your answers. A: I think that is a normal bug, so, you can use the newest version. There is a way to run older versions of Ext JS. You can use the '-h' option that cause a browser to run in quirksmode, so, you can have a smooth experience working with older versions of IE. On Windows: Start your browser as an administrator. Open the folder C:\Program Files\Ext JS\Ext JS 2.1\ Open the index.html file Go to the Miscellaneous section in the file Insert the lines: In the header: This versions should works with IE6 and IE7. On Linux: Start your browser as an administrator. Open the folder /opt/Ext JS 2.1/Ext JS 2.1/ Open the index.html file Go to the Miscellaneous section in the file Insert the lines: 6d1f23a050
